There Are Now Nearly Thirteen Hundred People Down With It.

The New Cases Number Two Hundred a Day—The Death Rate Small, However, Considering the Number of Cases-River Water Not Responsible.

St. Louis, Nov. 29.-The epidemic of typhoid fever continues to spread. Over 800 new cases were reported by the board of health Monday. This makes nearly 1,300 new cases reported since last Monday. The disease first made its appearance about October 1. For several days the number of cases was small, running from 15 to 20 through the month and up to about Wednesday a week ago, when we had that big rain. After that the cases grew rapidly, jumping from 15 and 20 to 40 and 50 a day, and then to 100, 150, and now over 200 a day.

During October there were, on rough estimate, not over 261 cases. During the first week of November there were 86 cases, the second week 97 cases, the third week 245 cases, and last week there were 930 cases. The increase per day for the last six days has been about as follows: Monday, 150; Tuesday, 110; Wednesday, 157. Thursday, 104; Friday, 164; Saturday, 215. Last week there were 85 deaths from typhoid fever, and the week before 19. The death rate, it will be seen, is quite small, when the large number of cases is considered. The disease has made its appearance in almost every part of the city, but has spread most rapidly, and its attacks have been more severe in the eastern half of the city lying between Jefferson avenue and the river. All the local physicians for some time believed that the cause of the epidemic was the Mississippi river, and the majority of the inhabitants of the city have been boiling their favorite beverage before using for drinking or culinary purposes. But Monday City Chemist Sullivan concluded an analysis of the river water, on which he has been at work for over a week, and his report was submitted to the board of health Monday afternoon. In this report Mr. Sullivan declares the river water not guilty. He states that his examination has utterly failed find the "bacillus typhoidse" existing in the water supply of St. Louis, and that the water is comparatively free from any germ life that might threaten the health of the city. It is a recognized fact that water used for drinking purposes may contain up to 2 per cent of organic matter without being dangerous to health, and Dr. Sullivan's report will show that 6t. Louis' water supply reveals a much lower percentage of organic matter than the above "safety limit." The city chemist believes that the result of his examination should at once dispel the theory that the city's water supply is responsible for the present prevalence of fever. The doctors will now be compelled to find some other cause for the epidemic, which continues to grow so rapidly in spite of their efforts to check it.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 .- The court of claims gave a decision favorable to the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. in its suit against the United States to recover $178,583 additional compensation for the conveyance from October 8, 1875, to September 26, 1885, of mails "From San Francisco to New Zealand, New South Wales, Queensland and Victoria-otherwise the Australian Colonies" upon the ground that the company has not been paid the full sea postage on the letters, and has been paid nothing on the other articles contained in the mails referred to.

American Gold Movements. LONDON, Nov. 29.-The gold move ments in New York engage the attention of the Haute Finance in London, Paris and Vienna. The impending American consignments for London are attributed partly to the continuous large sales of American railroad securities on English account and partly to the absorption of gold by Austria in connection with the conversion of currency now in progress in that country. Since November 11 the Austro-Hungarian bank has purchased £4,000,000 worth of gold, chiefly in the open market in London.

He Doesn't Stop at Civilians, But Robs Even Little Children and Policemen. CHICAGO, Nov. 29.-The mounted highwayman who created trouble at the north end of the city last week has transferred himself to Clyde, Berwyn and Riverside suburbs, in the southwestern part of Chicago. Out there the lone bandit has taken complete possession of the roads, and poverty smites every man who meets him. Monday the police met him, and he robbed the police. Monday morning he met a ten-year-old boy, and made him give up fifty cents. Then he came in contact with another boy, who did not have a cent, and he allowed this youngster to go after turning his pockets inside out. Next J. M. Meyers, of the town of Lyons, paid two dollars for the privilege to keep on living. Frederick Sellers and Frederick Crow, of Riverside, drove up behind a horseman whom they had never before, and it cost them $6.50. The robber wheeled his horse across the road in front of them, and compelled them to give up what they had by threatening them with a revolver. John Keefe, a policeman, and William Ryan, were the next to meet trouble. Ryan lost $1.60, but he would have lost more if he had had it. Keefe had no money, but he lost his revolver and his reputation, which was all he carried with him at the time.

OFFICERS' MURDERERS.

The Slayers of Revenue Officials Demur to Being Tried by the United States. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 29 .- The U. S. court was in session Monday, Judge L. M. Key presiding. The most interesting matter that came up was the case of A. J. Patrick, Morgan Petty, James Epps and Nash J. Cooper, charged with the murder of Revenue Officers Spurrier, Cardwell and Mather, in Lincoln county, six weeks ago. An indictment was found by the federal grand jury against the four men for murder in the first degree. The case came up Monday in the shape of a demurrer, the ground being that the U. S. court had no right to try a prisoner for murder when the offense was committed at a point in the juris diction of the state. J. H. Holmes, of Fayetteville, made the argument in favor of the demurrer. District Attorney Ruhm resisted the demurrer, and cited authorities showing that the federal courts could try for murder when a federal officer was killed in the discharge

BI-METALLISM.

Proposal Submitted by Rothschild to the Conference.

He Argues that Bi-Metallism in England is Absolutely Impossible,

And Suggests a Generally Extended Use of Silver-Rothschild Does not Claim That His Proposal Will Prove a Solution, But That It Will Be Palliative.

BRUELS, Nov. 29.-M. De Rothschild's proposals were submitted to the Monetary conference Monday afternoon. They cover eleven printed octavo pages. M. De Rothschild argues at great length that bi-metallism in Great Britain is absolutely impossible, and suggests that the question arises whether it is not possible to extend the use of silver generally, and by this means assist in checking a further fall in value.

M. De Rothschild said he did not claim that his proposals would prove a final solution of the question, but he did claim that they would prove a palliative. Summed up, his proposals are that America should continue her present purchase of silver, and the European powers should combine to buy up an amount equal to £5,000,000 sterling yearly for five years at 43d. If silver should rise above that price the purchases are to be immediately susended.

It is expected that the proposals will be referred to a committee. The Portiguese delegates have been instructed by their government to act in harmony with the British representatives.

The document submitted by Alfred de Rothschild said in part: "I feel that a gold standard in England is the only possible one, and if we consider that her whole commerce and a great part of that of other countries, is carried on by bills of exchange on London, which are naturally payable in gold, it must be admitted that the world generally transacts business on a gold basis, and that a double standard, with the exception of a very modified form, does not exist even in those countries professing to pay in either metal. Whatever national agreement should be made, and whatever ratio should be established, gold alone will always be chosen as the favorite medium of settling large debts, or making large remittances. It would be impossible to remit large sums of silver abroad, owing to the bulk. Gold would be sent even if it had to be bought at a premium.

Referring to the depreciation of sil ver, he said in addition: "Germany's action in 1873, and the action of Italy, Russia and of Austria in amassing gold, is conclusive proof of the appreciation of great European countries of the advantage of a gold standard. I can not deplore the ability of Indian exporters to send wheat to England simply because it interferes with the British farmer. I hold that wheat at 30s instead of 45s is a blessing rather than otherwise. However, I think that the fall in the price of certain commodities is due to overproduction, chiefly owing to the development of new regions, and to the increased facilities of communication, enabling products to be placed at low prices in European markets.

Apart from other considerations it seems to me that a universal arrangement of the currency question is impossible. As the wealth, resources and expenditures of no two countries are alike, it will be impossible to carry on the trade of the world on a sound, stable basis if the debtor was allowed the option of paying in whichever currency suited him. Although I hope I have shown that bi-metallism is impossible in England, the question arises whether or not it is possible to extend the use of silver, thereby stopping a further fall and its disastrous consequences, whereof it is impossible to foresee, I therefore submit the proposal, not as an absolute, lasting remedy, but as a paliation."

"If you approve the plan," said Mr. Rothschild, "you can make a supplement to it in any way you think proper before submitting it to your governments. I think that such an arrangement will give general satisfaction. I believe that our American friends will find it acceptable. I see no objection to silver being made a legal-tender in England up to five pounds. I believe that the proposal will be well received in India. The bulk of the population will recognize that no material alteration is suggested, while the merchants and bankers will know that the exchanges are given a stability which will remain undisturbed during a period of five years. Unstable exchange, more than depreciation of the rupee, is the chief factor of complaint in India. The gold market will also be relieved, as only European appeals will be made thereto for a long time, and as south Africa is increasing her output of gold, the arrangement suggested will enable Russia and Austria to complete purchases without unduly interfering with the money market. If the conference adjourns without having accomplished any definite result, it will cause a fall in silver frightful to contemplate. It will cause a monetary panie, of which it is impossible to foretell the far-spreading effects. "I allude to India because the cessation of the India demand for silver or a material decline in the rupee, owing to specific legislation, would materially affect not only the savings of hundreds of millions of people, but the value of silver generally. I therefore hope for your ultimate approval, as, although it may be urged that countries not so interested as England and India are expected to make sacrifices, I yet believe that what is best for the world generally must prove best for individual interests."
